PROFILE

I am a third-year computer science student at ISPM, following the Electronics, Computer Systems, and Artificial Intelligence (ESIIA) program, passionate about front-end development and motivated by creating modern and efficient interfaces. I enjoy turning ideas into concrete solutions that enhance the user experience. Curious, serious, and quick to adapt, having already contributed to numerous academic and personal projects, I wish to put my skills into practice within a dynamic team to contribute to real projects while developing my professional experience.
